

Other Considerations

Welcome to the “Other Considerations” section of the site. There are several additional factors that are important to consider when deciding on the most appropriate type of breast reconstruction for you – factors such as prophylactic mastectomy, immediate versus delayed reconstruction, one-stage versus two-stage breast implant reconstruction, radiation therapy and chemotherapy may be parts of your treatment and should be discussed with your breast surgeon and plastic surgeon during the planning of your treatment options.

In making this decision, you may also find the “Myth or Fact?” section on this site helpful.

Important Information: Every patient is different and their reconstruction options and their results may vary. All depictions on the site are for illustration purposes only. Whether or not you have breast reconstruction is a decision you need to make in consultation with your physician. Only you and your physician can determine the best option for you. Please ask your doctor to explain the benefits and risk of various reconstruction options and whether they are right for you.
